FOR HIS NATURAL LIFE

Jesse McGregor Was Sentenced This Morning.

MR. TAYLER'S LAST MOVE

Was Overruled by the Court, and the Prisoner Must Go to the Penitentiary—He Declared He Was Not Guilty—The Case Will Be Heard In Circuit Court In Three Weeks.

Special to the NEWS REVIEW.

LISBON, Jan. 7.—Promptly at 10 o'clock this morning Jesse McGregor was again brought before the court to receive sentence for the crime of which he was convicted. Immediately after McGregor was brought into court by Deputy Sheriff Moffat, Prosecutor Speaker opened the proceedings with a statement to the court that the case of Ohio versus McGregor was called up for sentence. R. W. Taylor then followed for the defense with the following statement and motion to the court for a stay of execution of the sentence, pending the action of the circuit court, which will be in session on the 29th of this month, and before which the next hearing of this now famous case will come:

"If the court pleases we have ordered a transcript of the proceedings and entries in this case and will take it before the circuit court which convenes three weeks from tomorrow. We think there is no reason why the execution of this sentence should not be suspended, and the accused allowed to stay in the county jail during this time within reach of his friends. It is a case where the accused is sentenced for life, and I do not think there will be any objection. The law gives the sheriff 30 days in which to execute this sentence, and that will give the circuit court ample time to review the case." Mr. Taylor closed by reading from the statutes several instances relating to the suspension of sentence which specifically declare that it can be done in cases of second degree sentence, but leaving it entirely at the discretion of the court.

Prosecutor Speaker—If the court please, this seems to be rather a serious question as to whether or not this request shall be granted. At the time of the overruling of the motion for a new trial the defense were granted ample time before the passing of sentence during which the defendant was to see his friends and arrange his business affairs."

After requesting the prisoner to stand up, Judge Billingsley said: "You have been indicted by the recent grand jury for murder in the first degree, and convicted of murder in the second degree. The penalty has been fixed by the law, and allows no discretion of the court except as to saying whether it shall be at hard labor or close confinement. The law now makes it my duty to ask of you as to whether you have anything to say why sentence should not be imposed upon you."

McGregor, who had been standing while the court gave utterance to these words, did not seem the least affected as he replied, "Nothing; only that I am perfectly innocent of this crime."

"The only duty that remains for the court," continued Judge Billingsley, "is to pass sentence upon you, and it is therefore the sentence of the court that you be confined in the Ohio penitentiary at hard labor, but without solitary confinement, for the term of your natural life."

McGregor took the sentence as though it was an everyday affair, and did not move a muscle. Mr. Taylor, however, addressed the court saying:

"In making this request of the court we are not asking the court to depart one hair's breadth from the line of duty, but we do think we are entitled to this much since it can not make any great serious difference one way or the other. The sheriff is willing. I talked to him only yesterday and he did not signify an unwillingness to keep him. The prisoner is in hope that before long his aged mother can be well enough to come and see him. Our reason for asking delay on last Saturday a week, at the time when the motion for a new trial was overruled, was to have time to consider the matter of taking the case to a higher court."

"This is no very serious question," said Judge Billingsley; "but it is a discretionary matter which the court should exercise only when the circumstances of the case call for it. If any good reason can be shown it should be granted; but if no good reason can be produced it should be denied. I fail to see what service the defendant will be to his counsel in this matter before the reviewing court, as the records are complete, and I can not see of what use he will be in the proceedings of the court. As to seeing his friends again the court does not give much weight, although it is a matter seriously regretted by all." After a few more words in which the court touched upon this last question, he denied the motion made by the defense, and the case was over.

McGregor was taken back to jail where he will remain until he, in company with a number of others, will be taken to Columbus. Columbiana county will contribute in the neighborhood of a dozen to the population of Franklin county.

To the Pen.
Special to the NEWS REVIEW.

LISBON, Jan. 7.—Sheriff Lodge has decided to take McGregor and his nine other prisoners to the penitentiary tomorrow morning. Five guards will accompany them.

At the Y. M. C. A.

There was a nice audience in attendance on Sunday afternoon. The superintendents of the various Sabbath schools were to make five minute addresses. But three of the churches responded. Superintendents Matheny, of the First Presbyterian church, Hall, of the Methodist Protestant church, and Scott, of the Christian church, with Reverend Hodson, of the Methodist Episcopal church, acting for Superintendent Ferran, making very interesting comments from the text "For God so Loved the World." Messrs. George McIntosh, Gray and Gotschall sang several selections of song, while Messrs. McIntosh and Gotschall delighted the assembly with a duet. Choice music has become one of the attractions to these services each Sunday afternoon, to which you have an earnest invitation.

Patrick McDermott is Dead.
Patrick McDermott died at his residence on Thompson hill yesterday morning after a long illness, typhoid fever being the cause. For several years he was the watchman at the plant of the D. E. McNicol pottery, and was known to a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Deceased was 49 years of age, and had lived a long time in the city. The funeral will take place from the Catholic church tomorrow at 9 o'clock, with interment in the Catholic cemetery. A wife and seven children mourn the loss of a good husband and father.

Clear the Walk.
Complaint is heard because of the condition of the sidewalk in front of the new school building on Fourth street. All the heavy work has been done about the building, but the street is littered with pieces of stone, and the walk has not been in fit condition for the use of pedestrians for months, and the many people compelled to use the street are wondering why the contractors do not think of the convenience of the public and spend a few dollars in doing now what work they must eventually perform.

A Salem View.
The Salem News is opposed to any attempt to form a new county with East Liverpool as the seat of government, because Salem would like to be the hub of a new county cut out of Columbiana, Mahoning and Stark.

The News has also gone to the trouble of finding the exact conditions under which the project can be carried out, an unnecessary precaution since many, many years will elapse before the boundaries of Columbiana will change.

A Matter of Local Pride.
As a matter of local pride the city should give the Girls' band an exceptionally good audience at the Grand tomorrow evening. The organization will soon advertise East Liverpool far and wide, and deserves recognition in return. In addition to this, the entertainment to be given by the band tomorrow evening is one well worth the price of admission, and should attract one of the largest audiences of the year.

The Home Not Dead.
It was rumored this morning that the Prohibition organ, the Home, was dead, and would appear no more with his patent outside and no news. The report, however, seems to have been an error, since Charles Bough is responsible for the statement that it still lives, and will soon appear again. There has been no issue for several weeks.

A Drop In Light.
The electric light company of Steubenville has reduced the price of incandescent lights, so that they now give their patrons a 16-candle-power light for 30 cents.

More About Lenz.
Joseph Tatarran, of Ezeroum, wrote to J. J. Purinton, Nov. 24, and the letter was received here today, and says that he knew nothing of Lenz until he got Mr. Purinton's letter last spring regarding a check. As Lenz never drew the check he thought he had changed his route, and thought nothing of it. He believes that Lenz was either murdered by Knurds or was drowned in crossing one of the rivers between Diadin and Ezeroum. The road was in a dangerous condition, he says, and Lenz should never have been allowed to travel without an escort. The management of "Outing" has sent an elaborate statement denying that they have suppressed information regarding Lenz.

DID HENDERSON DIE?

A Romance From Smoky Pittsburg.

LIVERPOOL PEOPLE INTERESTED

A Man Believed to Have Committed Suicide, Having Been Despondent Since the Death of His Wife, Who Once Lived in This Place—Some Investigations.

A Pittsburgh paper this morning contained a long article detailing events in which East Liverpool people were supposed to play an important part.

The story tells of a beautiful girl who eloped from East Liverpool with a young railroad man, and going to live in Pittsburgh died a short time ago. The husband despondent over the awful calamity is thought to have taken his own life, jumping from a bridge into the foaming flood of the Allegheny, and leaving no trace beyond but an overcoat on the railing. It says:

"Henderson was a railroad man from East Liverpool. About a year ago he made a runaway match with Miss Alice Harrison, who was celebrated as the prettiest girl in East Liverpool. She was the daughter of John and Hannah Harrison, and was born 21 years ago in Salineville. Alice was a delicate blonde, with the whitest skin and the most luxuriant golden tresses. Her parents opposed her marriage to Henderson, and since the young people were wedded they were not received at the Harrison house."

About three months ago they went to Pittsburgh to live, and got along very well until Saturday night when his wife gave birth to a child. In a few hours both mother and babe were stiffening corpses, and Henderson was prostrated with grief. He was without money, having spent the last cent in sending a telegram to the relatives of his wife in Liverpool. Early in the afternoon a sister, whose name is given as Miss Lu Harrison, arrived in the city, and the remains were shipped to this place on the evening train. The husband did not come with the remains, but said that he would leave Pittsburgh on a later train. At that time he was laboring under intense agitation, and those who saw him could not but wonder at the awful strain. When Henderson left he was not seen again. On Sunday morning a man brought an overcoat to the house where Henderson had lived and said that he had found it on the Ninth street bridge. It belonged to Henderson, and in one pocket was found the telegram he had received from Liverpool and the keys to the house. A man named Dow was at the house and received the coat, and at once wired the family in Liverpool asking if Henderson had appeared here. He had received no answer last night. The supposition was expressed in Pittsburgh that the man, sorrowing over the death of his wife, had jumped from the Ninth street bridge leaving the coat for his friends to know that he had taken this means of ending his wretched existence. His friends give him an excellent character, styling him a young man of exemplary habits who seemed entirely devoted to his wife.

Inquiry among the Harrison families of the city by a NEWS REVIEW reporter failed to reveal any knowledge of the Pittsburgh tragedy. Then there was a suspicion that a mistake had been made in the names given by the Pittsburgh papers, and search was made in another direction. This was made doubly sure by a telegram from Pittsburgh, in which the names were as badly mixed as in the article in question. At length a clue was gained by the belief that the mystery could easily be unraveled in this city. From what could be gathered the deceased was Miss Cannon, one of the most beautiful women that ever lived in the city. Her father was dead and she lived here with her mother and sisters. The family came here from Salineville, where they are well and favorably known. No more information could be secured as all the interested parties were in Salineville attending the funeral which takes place there this afternoon. Meantime no word has come from Pittsburgh regarding the whereabouts of the husband.

Thomas Robinson Dead.
Thomas Robinson, a potter employed at Brunt's, died at a boarding house on Thompson hill yesterday, the cause being consumption. His mother and two sisters will be here from Tyler county, West Virginia today. The body will be taken to the old home of deceased tomorrow.

Not a Lively Market.
Real estate dealers are complaining because there is not a lively market, and but few people are searching for an investment in houses. Some sales have been made at good prices, but they are few and far between.

Called to Salineville.
Word was sent to Thomas Cannon, of Sixth street, this morning, regarding the dangerous illness of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Maher, of Salineville. He went to Salineville on the morning train.

A Heavy Load.
Colonel Watson will leave tonight for a trip through the South in the interest of the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company. He will have with him baggage to the amount of $600 pounds.

Cut Off the Glass Works.
The river backed up this afternoon and cut off the Specialty glass works so that it could not be reached by teams. The wagon of the company and the Adams express company were compelled to discontinue their trips early in the afternoon. Any member of council viewing the scene could readily see the necessity of the road asked by the company a few weeks ago.

A BIG RIVER BOOMING

The Water Coming Up With a Rush.

A GENERAL THAW YESTERDAY

Shantyboat People Preparing for High Water—Twenty Feet Expected in Pittsburgh Which Means More Than We Want in East Liverpool.

The snow is gone, and the prospects seem bright for a big river as the thaw is general on the western slope of the Alleghenies.

Snow began falling early Saturday evening, but in a few minutes it had changed to rain, which seemed to increase in strength until a terrific storm was raging. All night long the rain fell, and there was little change yesterday, with more rain on Sunday night.

The snow began to melt under the terrific beating from the rain, and the hill streets were transformed into miniature foaming torrents. Gutters were clogged, and the water overflowed, making the most miserable day known in many weeks. The thaw seemed general, and at an early hour yesterday the river began to rise, sweeping the ice out in great masses, which went grinding and crushing toward the sea. Many people took observations during the day, and the general opinion prevailed that the water was coming up with a bound, but no one could tell how many inches were being added every hour. The houseboat people looked on with no little wonder, but they had seen similar occasions before, and knew just what to do to prevent disaster. Ropes were made a little tighter, fastenings were carefully observed, and the whole population seemed preparing to stay in spite of the coming flood. Some old rivermen around the boats declared that the river would be higher than for many years, and advised their friends to take every possible precaution. When the word came from Pittsburgh that at least 20 feet of water was expected there, the knowing ones began to look at each other and ask what it would mean at this place. Then came memories of floods in the past, and the prediction that the prophesied amount above meant nothing less than enough water here to make it decidedly uncomfortable for the river potties and the street railway. The ice came out of the Beaver, and many smaller branches, and the river was filled all night. The highest stage is not expected until tomorrow morning when the worst will likely be over.

At 10 o'clock this morning the river was rising at the rate of eight inches an hour, with prospects of increasing in volume before the day was over. Only a small amount of drift appeared, and the ice seemed to have exhausted its supply. At three o'clock this afternoon the water was rising at the rate of two feet an hour which means that the flood is coming in from the Monongahela and Allegheny valleys with a rush. The many other tributaries of the Ohio above here are swollen to abnormal size and are adding to the flood. No accidents of any importance have been reported in this vicinity, although many were expected when it was certain that the flood would come. One of the stranded barges at Line Island broke away this afternoon, and came whirling down stream until it lodged on the other side of the river opposite the city. Some people who pretend to know say that there will not be less than 40 feet of extra water here tomorrow morning, and if the rain continues we will not have the full force of the flood until Wednesday.

The disagreeable features of the thaw were felt by hundreds of persons yesterday as they splashed through the slush or cut fantastic figures attempting to retain their balance on the hillsides. Commissioner Welsh had his force out all of yesterday cleaning gutters, and breaking the numerous dams of rubbish which caused the water to back up in many an unpleasant spot. Second and Third streets were the most important points while the force of the fall on Market, Washington and Broadway made a way through all the garbage that had collected during the week.

The river backed up this afternoon and cut off the Specialty glass works so that it could not be reached by teams. The wagon of the company and the Adams express company were compelled to discontinue their trips early in the afternoon. Any member of council viewing the scene could readily see the necessity of the road asked by the company a few weeks ago.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O. MONDAY, JAN. 7.

For President,
WILLIAM MCKINLEY,
OF Ohio.

THE penitentiary is being run at a loss, and some rabid Democratic editors are laying the blame on Governor McKinley.

It has been almost a week since the last Republican patriot announced his intention to become the next governor of Ohio.

THE street corner loafer who does not possess a plan to revive the currency is as a bubble floating upon a desolate sea.

THE Republican doctrine of protection is as foremost in the minds of the people today as it was when the McKinley bill was announced.

It is said that Coxey and Brown will soon begin the publication of a newspaper in Massillon. We always did think that pair had money to burn.

Governor McKinley is being invited to speak in all parts of the country, beseeching delegations calling on him almost every day. The personal popularity of the able statesman is becoming more marked every year.

UNLESS there is some radical change of which nothing is known at present, there seems but little likelihood of any more tinkering with the tariff in Cleveland's administration. The Democrats seem to fear the result of what they have already done, and there is no one with sufficient nerve to make the first move.

ONE requisite of any improved financial scheme must be a plan to keep gold in the treasury. The last sale of bonds to a syndicate brought in $50,000,000, many hundred thousands of which was drawn out in a few days to pay for those same bonds as they passed from the hands of the original owners to the less important speculator.

SELECT GOOD MEN.

While it is a foregone conclusion that the county officers to be elected next fall will be Republicans, that is no reason why the claims of every aspirant should be taken as gospel truth and his earnest wish to do public service be accepted without a word of explanation.

Columbiana county wants good men in office, good Republicans who will do their sworn duty, and carry on public business as though it was their own, using economy and good judgment. There are men of this sort, searching for every office at the disposal of the people, and it is the duty of the people to cull the best material from the lot. As long as government is known as a convenient institution where any broken down citizen can retrieve his shattered fortunes or is accepted as the last resort of men who have failed in every other walk of life, so long will the people be subjected to indignities worthy the men from whom they come. We want clean, enterprising officials, men who will do their duty without fear or favor.

Give the Girls' Band Concert company a nice send off tomorrow night, at the Grand, as their farewell before leaving for New York.

BARNES—Buy your groceries.

Little Fanny Bertelle, the child wonder, at the Grand tomorrow night.

ON A FLYING CAR.

Serious Street Car Accident In Kingston, N. Y.

A MILE A MINUTE ON A GRADE.

The Five Passengers Have a Frightful Experience—Three Save Themselves by Jumping—Two Passengers Hurt—The Motorman Fatally Injured.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 7.—A serious accident has occurred on the Kingston Electric Street railway on a steep grade along the lower end of Broadway. Near the top of the hill is a switch. When car No. 1, in charge of Conductor James Norton and Motorman Charles Link, reached this point going down it was found that the brake would not hold the car. The motorman made frantic efforts to get control of his car, but the ice had got between the brake and the wheels to the extent that the sand box seemed to have no effect.

There were five passengers aboard and they made desperate attempts to jump from the flying car, but were prevented for a time. Finally one man, T. P. Oslander, sprang for his life and landed safely in a snow bank. Two of the passengers were ladies and they were kept in the car by the conductor, who stuck to his post, as did also the motorman.

By this time they were moving at the rate of a mile a minute, and many spectators gazed in horror at the runaway, which looked every moment as though it would dash into one of the buildings that lined the road down the hill. The car kept the rails, however, until the sharp curve at the foot of the hill was reached.

The runaway dashed over this curve at a terrific rate and plowed half way through the Cornell Steamboat company's building, taking down a huge iron pillar in its flight. The motorman was seriously injured about the skull and is likely to die. Conductor Norton came through safely. Mrs. James Selforth was seriously shocked and received a number of minor injuries. Her sister, who was also in the car, was severely bruised, but not seriously. Two gentlemen from Germantown jumped just before the car struck and escaped with slight injuries.

An Interesting Fight On.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 7.—The legislature meets at Charleston next Wednesday. An exceedingly interesting fight is on for the United States senator from West Virginia to succeed Senator J. N. Camden. There are five candidates, viz: N. E. Whittaker of the First congressional district, George C. Sturgiss of the Second, John B. Floyd of the Third, John A. Hutchinson of the Fourth, and S. B. Elkins of the Second.

It will be Elkins against the field, with the present prospects favorable to Elkins. The election of senator occurs Jan. 22.

To Continue the Investigation.

ALBANY, Jan. 7.—In the state senate this week, Senator Lexow will introduce a resolution extending the time of the investigation of the Lexow committee and giving it further powers but allowing it to make a preliminary report.

Mr. Conkling in the senate is likely to interfere with such an investigation by introducing a bill empowering the mayor of New York to appoint a municipal committee of his own to go into an investigation of every city department.

Perished In an Avalanche.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—The village of Orlu, in the Canton of Aix-les-Thermes, Pyrenees, has been partly overwhelmed by an avalanche, which has destroyed four houses and 12 barns. The bodies of 15 persons have been recovered from the ruins of these buildings, and at least eight persons are known to have been severely injured. In addition a number of cattle are buried in the avalanche.

Almost Wiped Out by Fire.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Jan. 7.—Hamlin, a small town and the county seat of Lincoln county, has been almost wiped out by fire. The fire originated in the Eagle flour mills and soon spread to the Hamlin handle factory, a large plant, and also to a large sawmill. All these buildings and several smaller ones were entirely destroyed. The origin of the fire and extent of the loss are not known. Little insurance.

What are you doing here?" inquired the officer.

"Nothing," was the quiet response.

"What are you going to do?"

"Nothing."

"What are you after?"

"Nothing."

"What do you want?"

"Nothing."

The officer was getting tired.

"Well," he said sarcastically, "why don't you take it and go?"

"I am, soon's that train gits ready to start."

The officer looked at his victim curiously.

"That's all right," laughed the visitor.

"I ain't goin to steal the street car track nor a house and lot ner a church steeple. I ain't got no use for 'em up my way. I live a piece up here on a farm. I've been workin for five years tryin to life a mortgage on my place. It's the heaviest liftin I ever undertook. Got it h'isted at last, though, and felt good, but the doctor said I needed rest and a change of scene. Told me I'd better come down to Detroit and do nothin for awhile. That's what I'm doin now. You've seen me at it. You'll do fer a witness in case I need one. I've been doin it since the train come in this mornin. It's the hardest work I ever done. I'd rather lift mortgages. I'm goin back soon as that train starts. If that doctor says anything to me, I'll give him a licker that'll make him think rest and change of scene restored me to strength and health in a surprisin manner. Now, you g'long about your business, and I'll tend to mind," but the officer talked with him till the train left and was invited to come up and spend a week with him.—Detroit Free Press.

An Old Member Resigns.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The black-balling of Theodore Seligman, son of the well-known banker, Jesse Seligman, by the Union League club, has as its sequel the resignation of Edwin Einstein, who has been a member since 1868.

A Steamer Capsizes.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 7.—The steamer Oneida, loaded for the Little Kanawha trade, struck the piling and capsized in the mouth of the river here, where she now lies.

A Victim of Coasting.

MEDIA, Pa., Jan. 7.—Joseph Martin, a 19-year-old son of Minshall Martin, residing near Wallingford, has died from injuries received in coasting.

Miss Stevenson Very Ill.

ASHVILLE, N. C., Jan. 7.—There is no change in Miss Stevenson's condition.

She is still very ill. The vice president has arrived here.

Can Have the Congo State.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 7.—The Gazette De Charleroi states that France has informed Belgians that she will not oppose the annexation by Belgium of the Congo state.

No Wagner Performance.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Wagners family have decided that there shall be no performance of his work at Bayreuth this year.

A FLOOD EXPECTED.

The Streams Above Pittsburgh Rising—People at Cincinnati Scared.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 7.—A flood is coming. Exactly how high it will be is yet uncertain, but people living on low grades along the rivers will do well to be prepared for very high water.

Reports show that the warm rain has been general throughout the head waters of both rivers, and the fears of a disastrous flood become greater. Several millions of dollars worth of property is strewn along the river in the different pools and will be endangered in case the ice comes down on a great flood.

The heavy snows of last week averaged about ten inches deep through the watershed of the Monongahela, and from 15 to 20 inches in the watershed of the upper Allegheny. Reports from the upper rivers show that every little creek has been turned into a torrent. This water is pouring into the rivers from all directions and will soon be rushing past Pittsburgh.

The extraordinary rise at Weston, W. Va., is due to an ice gorge just below that place. It leaves the water little chance to escape. Grave fears are entertained for the safety of the town.

There is a heavy ice gorge between Wheeling and Moundsville. It is 12 miles long. When the flood strikes that gorge there may be serious times at Wheeling and Steubenville.

A Cincinnati special says: There is serious apprehension of another flood. The river has reached 14 feet 5 inches, and the indications are that the rise will over a foot an hour for some days to come. It would take only a day of such rising to reach the danger point of 40 feet of water. In February, 1884, the river reached its highest water mark here of 72 feet.

Important Manufacturers' Convention.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—The responses indicate that the national convention of manufacturers here Jan. 22, 23 and 24 will be well attended. After electing officers some city will be selected for headquarters. In addition to developing foreign trade, it is proposed to have expositions in South American capitals and urge control of the Nicaragua canal by the United States. Among the speakers will be Governor McKinley, Senator Sherman, Mayor Caldwell, Warner M. Miller, ex-Governor J. D. Cox, President M. E. Ingalls, Speaker Crisp and Secretary Herter.

A Fire in Toronto.

TORONTO, Can., Jan. 7.—The Globe building, erected in 1889 at a cost of $90,000, with a plant valued at $50,000, is a complete wreck from fire. The Toronto Lithograph company, which occupied a floor in the building, lost all its presses and many valuable stones. Other losses were: Harry Webb's restaurant, $70,000, and McKinnon & Co.'s drygoods store, $170,000. Chief Armagh and five firemen were more or less badly injured.

A Determined Foe of Music.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 7.—Frank Buchanan of Lucasville, who is evidently opposed to music, has been arrested on a charge of entering the practice hall of the Lucasville cornet band, armed with a shotgun, and after driving the musicians into the street broke up their instruments with the butt end of the weapon. Buchanan claims he has the money and determination to break up every musical organization that invades the town.

Every Dog Ordered Killed.

HINTON, W. Va., Jan. 7.—A big black and tan terrier, with every indication of hydrophobia, ran wild in the streets, biting many other dogs and attacking several persons. Judge David E. Johnson had his clothing almost torn from his body, but fortunately his skin was not broken by the dog's teeth. B. B. Burks and James Reynolds were both slightly bitten. The dog was killed and the mayor ordered every dog in the city killed at once.

Then the garden gods fell on their faces, and thorns sprang up and choked them, and all was desolation and respectability.

Again the villa waited not in vain, for one day the windows were opened, exposing all the ghastly gaps in their panes, and a strange man, untidy and shock headed, pottered about in the weedy, seedy garden, a grim and churlish recluse. But negro curiosity, once sharply piqued, is persistent and penetrating, and forthwith Ethiopia began to gossip about the strange man, how that he was a blacksmith from Connecticut and an oracle in local political circles, one to whom "Big Six" was a spell to conjure with. And presently the disheveled interloper was joined by a bearded and venerable companion, with a head like a pear, who lurked and waited behind the close gates and the screen of shrubbery. Then a furtive yacht at night in St. Michael's river took the bearded mystery aboard and was off to the bay and the sea, and the police, who went poking about the place a day or two later, looked foolish and asked one another inane conundrums about the cunning flitting of Boss Tweed.—"Old Maryland Homes and Ways" in Century.

Charity.

The lady was making some remarks about the kind of clothes some other ladies at church had on.

"The finest garment a woman can wear," said her husband, "is the man of charity."

"Yes," she snapped, "and it's about the only one some husbands want their wives to wear."—Exchange.

PEACE OUTLOOK BAD.

Minister Denby Fears the War Will Go On.

JAPS DETERMINED TO TAKE PEKIN

Will Withhold Their Terms of Peace Until They Occupy the Chinese Capital. Won't Agree to an Armistice—Despise the Fort Arthur Atrocities.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—A dispatch to The Times, from Pekin, says that the Chinese envoys to negotiate peace with the Japan had a farewell audience with the emperor on Friday, before leaving for Japan. Japan refuses to grant an armistice. Mr. Denby, the American minister, believes that the negotiations will be fruitless. The Japanese will withhold their terms from peace until they shall have occupied Pekin. Japanese landing parties are busy exploring the bays on the east coast of the province of Shantung.

A San Francisco special says: Advices by the steamer China from Yokohama state that until the proper occasion for proclaiming an armistice presents itself the military operations will continue with unabated vigor. Japan will not be tempted to relax her aggressive energy, nor will she be diplomatically manouvered out of any of the advantages she has.

CURRENCY BILL'S FATE.

This Week Will Probably Decide It In the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—This week promises to be a most eventful one in the house of representatives. It will not only determine the fate of the Carlisle currency bill, so far as the lower branch of congress is concerned, but in the event of the defeat of the measure it will have a far-reaching effect on the currency question and on the policy of congress for four terms beginning with the Fifteenth congress.

"After this note had been submitted to me I prepared in writing with some care a reply to the question it contained, to be read by me to the commissioners at our meeting. I intended to avoid all misunderstanding and misconception by absolutely confining myself to such written reply, of which the following is a copy:

"GENTLEMEN.—You must permit me to remind you that this interview is not an official one, and that instead of receiving you in any representative capacity I meet you as individuals who have traveled a long distance for the purpose of laying a certain matter before me."

"You ask if there is any hope of my doing anything for the restoration of the constitutional government of the Hawaiian Islands. I suppose that this question is largely prompted by the fact that soon after the overturning of the late government of the queen I investigated that transaction and was satisfied that there had been such an unjustifiable interference of aid of that movement on the part of the representatives of the government of the United States in its diplomatic and naval service, as to call for correction, not only to rectify what seemed to be a wrong done to others, but also through that rectification to ward off what appeared to be danger to American honor and probity."

"Fully appreciating the constitutional limitations of my executive power, and by no means unmindful of the hindrances that might arise, I undertook the task.

"Having failed in my plans, I committed the entire subject to the congress of the United States, which had abundant power and authority in the premises. The executive branch of the government was thereby discharged from further duty and responsibility in the matter, unless moved thereto by congressional command. The congress has, both by its action and its omission to act, signified that nothing need be done touching American interference with the overthrow of the government of the queen.

"Quite lately a government has been established in Hawaii which is in full force and operation in all parts of the islands. It is maintaining its authority and discharging all ordinary governmental functions. Upon general principles, and not losing sight of the special circumstances surrounding this case, the new government is clearly entitled to our recognition without regard to any of the incidents which accompanied or preceded its inauguration."

"This recognition and the attitude of the congress concerning Hawaiian affairs, of course, led to an absolute denial of the least present or future aid or encouragement on my part to an effort to restore any government heretofore existing in the Hawaiian Islands."

"When the day appointed for the meeting arrived I was confined to my bed by illness and unable to keep my engagement. I, therefore, signed the paper I had expected to read, and it was delivered to the commissioners, who, I believe, returned at once to Hawaii. I never saw any member of this commission or committee, and have never had any communication or transaction with any of them directly or indirectly, except as I have here stated."

The recent execution of Two Sticks and the Indian dread of hanging was the cause. There was no doubt of his guilt.

GENERAL POST DEAD.

His Notable Career as a Warrior and Statesman.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—General Philip Sidney Post, member of congress from the Tenth district of Illinois, has died at the Hamilton hotel in this city, after an illness of one day. His death was from heart failure, resulting from acute gastritis.

General Post was best known through his brilliant military services in the rebellion, where he won high rank and distinction with great rapidity. When the war began he was appointed second lieutenant of the Fifth Illinois infantry. After the first Missouri campaign he became major, and eight months after his enlistment was made colonel of the Fifty-ninth Illinois for gallantry at the battle of Peridge, in which he was desperately wounded. Before he was able to mount his horse without assistance he rejoined the troops, then hurrying forward to Corinth, and was at once assigned to the command of a brigade. From May, 1862, to the close of the war he was constantly at the front.

In the army of the Cumberland, as first organized, he commanded the First brigade, First division of the Twentieth army corps from its formation to the dissolution of the corps; a brigade conspicuous in all the engagements of that army under General Rosecrans. With it he commenced the battle of Stone river, drove the enemy back several miles and captured Leestown. During the Atlanta campaign he was transferred to General Woods' division of the Fourth corps and when the latter was wounded at the battle of Lovejoy Station took command and returned with it to Tennessee to oppose the progress of the enemy north.

On Dec. 15, 1864, in the Nashville fighting he carried Montgomery Hill at the point of the bayonet, and in the next day's fighting fell, dangerously wounded, while leading an assault on Overton Hill. In July, 1865 he was given command of the western district of Texas and remained until the withdrawal of the French from Mexico removed the danger of military complications. After the war, in 1866, he was appointed consul to Vienna, was promoted consul general for Austria-Hungary in 1874, resigned in 1879, was commander of the department of Illinois G. A. R. in 1886, and was a Republican member of congress for four terms beginning with the Fifteenth congress.

Visit of Queen Lil's Commission Explained.

A STATEMENT FROM CLEVELAND.

He Was Unable to Receive the Commissioners on Account of Illness—Wrote a Letter to Them Saying the Government Would Not Interfere with the Republic.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The attention of President Cleveland having been called to a hint thrown out in the senate discussion on Friday that the visit of a certain "committee of royalists from the Hawaiian Islands" was connected in some way with the departure of American ships from that locality, the president said to your correspondent:

"Of course such an insinuation is very absurd. Its propriety and motive behind it, I am sure, can safely be left to the judgment of fair and right-thinking Americans. I am entirely willing that all our people should know everything I know concerning the visit of the so-called 'committee of royalists.'

"Last year, in the latter part of July or early in August, three gentlemen from Hawaii arrived here and asked through the secretary of state my designation of a time when they could have an interview with me and present a message from the deposed Hawaiian queen. Though I could not with propriety recognize them officially, I was not disposed to refuse them personally the courtesy of an audience. Therefore a future day and hour were fixed for the interview. In the meantime, at my request, transmitted through the secretary of state, these gentlemen made known the precise purpose of their visit in a note, which read as follows: 'We, the undersigned commissioners sent by her majesty, Queen Liliuokalani, request an audience of the president of the United States. We desire to ask his excellency whether there is any hope for his doing anything for the restoration of the constitutional government of the Hawaiian Islands. It was signed by J. A. Cummings, H. A. Widemann and Samuel Parker.'

"After this note had been submitted to me I prepared in writing with some care a reply to the question it contained, to be read by me to the commissioners at our meeting. I intended to avoid all misunderstanding and misconception by absolutely confining myself to such written reply, of which the following is a copy:

"GENTLEMEN.—You must permit me to remind you that this interview is not an official one, and that instead of receiving you in any representative capacity I meet you as individuals who have traveled a long distance for the purpose of laying a certain matter before me."

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

A Matter of Special Importance to Patrons of the Electric Light Company.

The light company have notified patrons that hereafter allnight lights will cost $1.20 per month, just about double what it will be if lights are turned out at 10 o'clock, as is done by most of the patrons. This is fair, as an allnight light is now burned 15 hours, and the light that is turned out at 10 o'clock is only burned five or six hours. There is an effort being made to equalize prices as far as possible, and a cut of 20 per cent has been made in meter prices, with the desire that all parties should change to this plan of using light, which is the only fair plan to consumer and customer. The proposed change does not affect lights turned out at close of business and turned on again at opening of place of business in morning.

Some of the Sick.

There are a number of cases of typhoid fever in the city, among the afflicted being Jason Orr, of Sheridan avenue, who is in a critical condition.

Miss Mayme Adams is ill at her home on Lincoln avenue.

Warren McCain, Lincoln avenue, suffers from an attack of the grippe.

Miss Sarah, the daughter of Daniel Pauley, West End, is suffering from tonsilitis.

Frank Searight, of the NEWS REVIEW staff, is confined to his room by an attack of throat trouble.

There are many cases of throat trouble in the city, but as yet none have developed into diphtheria.

A little camera Mary had—
She did not think it wrong—
And every place that Mary went
She took the thing along.

Twas of the instantaneous kind,
Twould take the lightning's flash
Or anything more quickly than
The miser takes his cash.

She tried the camera on a fly
And caught it as it flew,
And of the busy, buzzing bee
She got a splendid view.

But when she tried to catch a boy
Who o'er his schoolbooks pored
The instantaneous process failed—
She was completely floored.

The times when he began a task
Were very, very few,
And when he did begin she failed
Since he so soon was through.

PICTURESQUE PERSIAN FUNERALS.

Carrying the Remains of Defunct Pilgrims to the Gates of Paradise.

Saving an occasional "Yah khak!" from the throat of one of the tangle headed and wild eyed dervishes stalking along barefoot in the sand, not a sound breaks the stillness of the bright October morning as our caravan moves toward the bridge over the Holman river, that leads to the town of Khanakin, the customs and sanitary station of the Ottoman government, about three hours distance from the Turk-Persian frontier. It is a singular cavalcade we form, too, a veritable "caravan of the dead," for the true pilgrims among us are mainly defunct Persians, whose remains are being conveyed direct to djennet, the "gates of paradise," at the feet of their great saint and Aga, the Imam Hussein, at Kerbela. In front, and perched high up on the biggest camel that could be begged, borrowed or hired for the journey, rides our tschaush, or conductor, swarthy and turbanned, the blue in his garments proclaiming him a said or descendant of the prophet. The prophet, I may remark in passing, has a score of such in every Persian village. He holds aloft the royal ensign of the empire of the sun and lion, bearing the name of the shah and his own below it in letters of gold. Following him march the naashkesh, or "carriers of the dead," each at the head of a long string of mules laden with the remains intrusted to them.

The animals are led by charavadars—muleteers—and each bears two bodies, one slung on either side where the packers would ordinarily be. The corpses, when intact, are carried in hermetically closed cases, but comparatively few of these are to be found, as a rule, among these defunct pilgrims. The expense would be too great. So the pious Persian who desires to give effect to the last wish of his departed parents waits until nothing of their remains is left but the skeleton, which is then swathed in bandages, mummy fashion, and handed over to the naashkesh to be taken to the gate of paradise, which every good Shute firmly believes is at the exact spot where the sainted Hussein is buried in Kerbela. Far the greater number of the mules comprised in our caravan are laden with such bandaged bones and swathed skeletons slung on each side, the outlines showing distinctly through wrappings as they swing to and fro with the measured pacing of the animals.—London Standard.
